President's Message

As President of the Association of Applied Paleontological Sciences (AAPS), I want to welcome you to the 2023 edition of the Tucson Gem, Mineral & Fossil Show. This monumental annual event has become the bellwether of our industry, serving as a 'family reunion' of sorts for those of us who have come to spend the first two weeks of February every year in the Arizona desert. This organization focuses on improving the landscape for collectors and dealers alike with an emphasis on legal, ethical, and proper collecting of fossils. As "a fossil not collected is a fossil not protected" to put it bluntly, both amateur and commercial paleontological enthusiasts have provided a great deal to the study of paleontology with illustrious AAPS members having made substantial contributions to this science we love. This is, indeed, an exciting time.

In addition to using this handy "Show Guide" to help navigate this vast Tucson Show, I invite you to take notice of the advertisers in this booklet and consider what they have to offer. Many of the fossil dealers at this event are longtime AAPS members, and this resource can help keep track of them as dealers will move locations from year to year at this international marketplace. If you are reading this and have not joined AAPS, I invite you to consider a membership and joining our constantly growing and active ranks.

From our periodic newsletters to events here such as the annual AAPS banquet and our keynote lecture series, the association is positioned to be a resource, sounding board, and information exchange for our members. I hope you will consider attending the AAPS banquet and lecture, which will both be amazing. A highlight of our banquet is presentation of the prestigious Sternberg medal to all deserving recipients.

AAPS ADVOCATE 2021-2022

Luke Larson of Larson Paleontology was victorious in his bidding for the Bill Mason Paleobond Lab Coat at the annual 2022 AAPS Auction for the honor of flaunting the lab coat until the next annual auction in Feb 2023. Along with the honor of possessing it for a year, his company, Larson Paleontology, gets to be acknowledged and promoted in the AAPS annual directory as seen below.

Larson Paleontology Unlimited (Larson Paleontology) is a fossil/earth science preparation, conservation and consultation company that works with amateurs, professionals and institutions. The company was conceived by Neal and Luke Larson in December of 2012 to provide the finest quality prepared fossils to the collector, researcher and museum. Their mindset is that each and every fossil, no matter how important or trivial, needs the proper preparation to bring out its highest potential – no matter what it takes. From this attitude they take some of the world's most well-recognized fossils, ammonites, and turn them into magnificent scientific and display specimens. Larson Paleontology specializes in North American Ammonites but also supplies: Ammonites from world-wide localities, Agates, Trilobites, Crinoids, Eurypterids, Bivalves, Corals, Gastropods, Opals, Jewelry, Petrified wood, Books, and so much more.

Neal is well known for his love and knowledge of ammonites. He has written four popular books on the subject, has more than 60 published peer reviewed scientific articles (with many more in the wings) and more than 70 paleontological abstracts, posters, articles and reviews plus has given dozens of professional power point and slide presentations on a wide variety of geological, paleontological and historical subjects. To date, Neal has named and/or co-named 16 species, 4 genera, two families and one suborder of fossil invertebrates. He is a founding member, officer and board member of the AAPS; co-founder of Black Hills Institute; and co-founder, officer and board member of Black Hills Museum of Natural History.

Luke is an accomplished preparator, with experience that ranges the wide gamut of paleontological skills. He is well known for his phenomenal detailed preparation on dinosaur teeth, claws and small bones as well as a wide variety of other fossils including shark and mammal. Over the last seven years he has established himself as one of the finest professional preparators in the field of Dinosauria. His attention to detail and his diligence to do the finest work has won admiration from all who have seen his final products. He has a passion not only with ammonites but also with opals. He has acquired some of the finest, most brilliant opals for sale in the world today complimenting the family's passion with their close colors and brilliance and iridescence to ammonite shell.

Neal and Luke were joined in the business by Leif Larson in 2021, fulfilling the dream that he had been wanting for nearly 10 years. Although Leif had helped his father Neal in preparing fossils for shows since 2012 the company was not quite fluid enough to be able to bring him in. Leif brings his own special talents and diligence in preparing nearly every single fossil found within the host rock when no one else has ever bothered. His desire to exquisitely prepare bivalves, gastropods and everything else preserved in the rock makes the pieces he prepares a detailed snapshot in time of the seafloor during the Late Cretaceous.

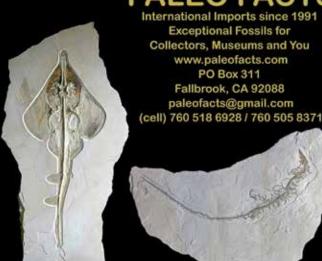

The combined years of professional experience within the Larson Paleo of Neal, Luke and Leif number nearly 80 years. All had their beginnings at Black Hills Institute with Neal as co-founder, owner, collector, preparator and officer; Luke as collector, preparator and sales; and Leif as collector and preparator. After their time there, they all longed to continue in the profession that they had truly loved. Their passion for natural history and their commitment in their preparation shows in the fossils they exhibit. It is their passion and commitment of the past and their deep love of fossils that drives them to try to be the best at their profession.

Let's Work Together to Prevent Theft

by George F. Winters
AAPS Administrative Director

Every year, as we get together for the largest annual gathering of Fossil Dealers during the Tucson Fossil and Mineral shows, there are several constants. Parking at most shows is always a problem, Show Fees and Hotel Room rates will be higher than the previous year, and there are thieves attending the shows that are going to try and steal from you. While the first two are beyond our control, there are many things we can all do to help prevent the third.

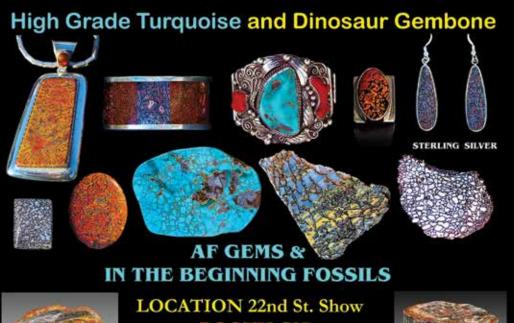

Eric Miller holding the recovered claw

Last year during the 2022 show Eric Miller of Geoteacher's Fossil Minerals and had two expensive Spinosaurus claws taken from his room. He immediately called the Tucson Police and then call started to dealers he knew and passed the word about the theft. He made images of the claws available on social media and sent them to fellow dealers set up at different shows. This paid because just several days later, the thief tried to sell the claws to one of the dealers at the Mineral Fossil Marketplace, who contacted the Show's promoter Adam Aaronson, a fellow dealer and owner of Sahara Overland. The pair along with Eric, set up a sting for the next day, the Tucson Police were notified and within hours the thief was arrested.

That theft had a decent outcome, one claw was recovered. The smaller one ($5500) was sold by the thief. Eric is pressing charges. The trial is set for 2/28/23. Everyone needs to make it as difficult as possible for thieves to get anything from a room, display case, booth, or outside table. Keep vigilant and circumvent shoplifting and thefts.

Let's start with some basics.

- 1. Items displayed outside your room should be in locked display cases.
- 2. Don't put any specimen inside your room within arm's reach of the open door, so that someone standing in the doorway can grab something while your back is turned and leave with your specimens in hand.
- 3. If possible, set up your room with specimens placed in secure display cases and leave the glass tops down and locked, without the keys in the lock. With a little pre-planning, you can have all your cases keyed a like. Tucson Store Fixtures has offered a 10% discount on lockable cases if you mention AAPS or this guide.
- 4. "Daily" before you open your room, take photos of each table with specimens laid out. Take individual photos of specimens worth more than $50.00. Place something for scale in the photo. AAPS has Photo Scales available and can deliver one to you at your room or stop by the AAPS booth at the Mineral Fossil Market Place, and I will gladly give you one for free.
- 5. Consider Placing a sign outside your room, stating "Video Cameras on Inside". So that potential shoplifters may consider passing your room.
- 6. If at all possible, have two employees in your room at all times. If you need a bathroom break and you're alone, "lock your room". I can honestly say that I have seen unattended rooms and booths at most of the hotels and shows during the Tucson Shows.
- 7. While it may be convenient to store extra inventory in a trailer or vehicle, take note that both have been stolen from vehicle lots during the shows. Consider having the extra inventory stored in your room or under a table at your booth. Cars, Trucks and Trailers are stolen or broken into every year.

The Tucson Police want you to call 911 to report any theft. Please do that first! Next send an email to george@stonejungle.com. Include your photos and a brief description with measurements of the stolen items along with your contact information. AAPS will send out an immediate "Fossil Theft Alert" via email to all (over 500) AAPS Members and on social media. We will include your contact information and photos of the stolen specimens.

The police may take a while to respond, shoplifting is a lower priority. While you are waiting, and after you send the email to me, take inventory of your specimens and make sure nothing else is missing. Offer copies of the photographs to the Tucson police or Pima County Sheriff Officers that take your report. It may be good to have some low-cost USB drives available in your supplies and the proper cable to connect to your phone or camera just in case.

For your convenience, I have prepared a full-size copy of the AAPS Photo Scale that you can download as a PDF and print. Trim it to size, and you can use that to place in your photographs for scale. The photo scales we have available at the AAPS booth, are printed on heavy stock, and are laminated.

Type this link to your browser to download and print the AAPS Photo Scale: https://aaps.net/pdf/aaps-photoscale-full-size.pdf

Be aware of those visiting your room or booth, take inventory when you have time, call 911 whenever the need arises and pass the word along when a theft occurs. By working together when you have a loss, your stolen items have a better chance of being recovered. Have a great show!
